SEEN, HEARD AND TOLD BY THE EDITOR

We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.—Acts 4:20.

Bob Sartnell fearing I would turn him off and get Chas Perry as previewer of farm pictures, guessed right last when as guessing the picture was that of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sulton. Mrs. Sulton came in Saturday and proudly claimed the picture.

Wednesday morning I showed the picture appearing on this page and, again, Bob named it, but that was easy. Nearly everyone in the county should name that picture of one of the very best maintained farm properties in this county.

See where the judges made a fine decision in naming Miss Ann Kent as Grenada's Miss Hospitality.

See where John A. (Bobby) Bryant is a new subscriber who works at the Bentley Hotel in Alexandria, La. When we fellows were in service in Camp Beuragard, we thought it was a grand experience to eat at the Bentley, which our pay afforded us to do about once a month.

Here's another new subscriber in the person of Pvt. Sam Herbert, now with some hellacious care of PM New York, address. Hope you will get several stripes soon, Pvt. Herbert, and best wishes to you. But dont get mixed up with any strange and wierd wimmen.

We hope Mrs. Ed Spruill will enjoy her sister's copy of the GCW which goes to them as new subscribers at the W. J. Riley home in Dyersburg, Tenn.

Starting early this week, we gave Mabel, our sassiety editor, the bits, so that she practically filled this issue with sassiety dope. Last week, we had a lotta ads, and her stuff was forced out.

Bible readers will remember what happened to the ship those folks took along on. About the same thing happened to Andrew and me when we took Tommie (Jonah) Darras along fishing Tuesday afternoon.

It's got so that I can not mention one of my favorite domino partners in the paper because his daughter, living 'way off yonder, will read the name and raise hell with the old man.

Talking to Kathleen Watson the other night up at 'Miss' Elizabeth's, I about got the Kettlers, the Watsons, etc., again straightened out in my mind.

B. Feltus' mama and papa visited her recently. B. is as cut as a speckled pup.

Dear Adelai: You had better hire one of these Grenada County Worshams as your campaign manager before they get embroiled in their own political matters. We dont want to lose to those gdrepublicans next time, as we did in 1952.

See where Erle Johnston, who used to be Mr. Frank Jones' 'devil', is running Jim Eastland's campaign, a campaign that, I sincerely hope, will be a successful one. It will be a winning race if folks, particularily folks interested in increased cotton acreage, will only remember what Jim did. And, we dont want our CC members, who wrote such a fine letter to Jim, to forget their endorsement of Jim.

There's a third fellow 'smelling' around, looking as if he wanted to run for Chancery Clerk.

Politics in Mississippi aint been nearly as much fun since old Bilbo on to keep opponents and folks in pon to keep opponents and folks in general on their toes.

They tell me Mississippi voters will have plenty of choice in the guanatorial race, also in the local sheriff's race in Grenada County. We county newspapers should be able to reap a golden harvest next year.

I think I saw Mrs. Archie Stubbs at a distance the other day. If anybody sees her or Archie, tell them I have been piling up their copies of the GCW for them ever since they left Okinowa Island.

I have not been out to see Cap Oliver, hence I dnot yet know much about this 'new industry' business.

R. J. Turner, III, Honored At LSU Medical School

Old man I. O. Pearson, now dead, would be mighty proud were he here to read the fine tribute paid his favorite grandson, R. J. Turner III, Edith Pearson Turner's son, when the boy received the George S. Bel Memorial Award and a gold medal, when he graduated in medicine at LSU recently.

The medal 'Symbolizes the highest ideals of medicine.'

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Turner Jr. live in Baton Rouge. The Pearson family, whose old home was recently reconstructed by Fred Simmons for his occupancy is on Margin Street in Grenada.

He came by plane to Memphis last Friday where he was met by his wife, the former Miss Gene Scott. On Sunday his former roommate at Tulane, Alan Berry, and his charming girl friend, Miss Carrie Sue Haynes of Blytheville Ark. spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Horton at the home of Mrs. Scott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Scott South of Holcomb. Ensign and Mrs. Horton left Wednesday of this week for Pensacola, Fla. where Mr. Horton will report for flight training at the Pensacola, Fla. Naval Station on June 13.

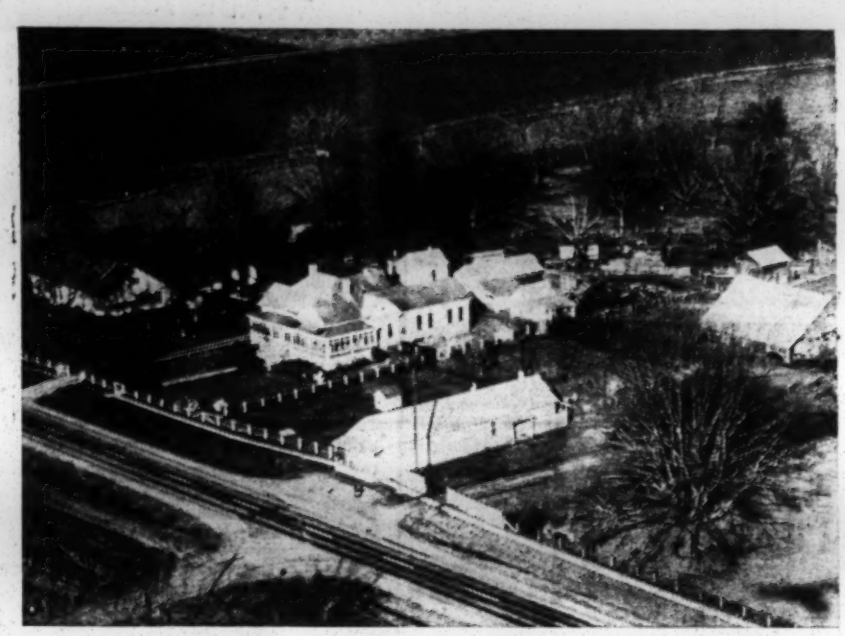
GRENADA COUNTY "FARM OF THE ..."

Number 8 In A Series Of 52



—This Series Sponsored by Jitney-Jungle, Grenada.

If this is YOUR farm, you can get, without charge, a nicely mounted picture of the farm, but you must come to the Grenada County Weekly and identify it.

While you are in the GCW office, we hope to interview you and get a story, for subsequent publication, about this property and about your family.

If you need other photographs of the above, either the size shown, or larger, or on postal cards, the GCW can, and will arrange for them. A reasonable charge, of course, will be made for these reproductions. Let us show you samples.

Hon. Carroll Gartin Will Officially Open His Campaign Next Tuesday In His Home Town mapped here this week for a gigantic Carroll Gartin Day to be held on June 15, when the Lt. Gov. opens his campaign for United States Senator from Mississippi.

Starting at 8 p. m. Gartin will deliver the first major address of the Senatorial campaign over a statewide radio network.

The 41 year old attorney said he will take a 'full look' at all the issues in the campaign and then 'meet them head on' in his opening speech.

Gartin will speak from the courtyard lawn where he opened his successful bid for the office of Lt. Gov. in 1951.

Near the speaker's stand there will be an easily-located information booth where supporters from over the state may ask questions and obtain campaign literature for distribution in their home towns.

Campaign manager Phillip Sheffield said that a large attendance is expected from hill counties of northeast Mississippi. Campaign aides say that every county in heavy-voting south Mississippi—Gartin's home territory—will be well represented.

Among issues Gartin indicated he will examine in his opening address are:

1. The agricultural situation, with particular emphasis on the unfair apportionment of cotton acreage;

2. Maintenance of separate school facilities for white and Negro children; and

3. Progressive legislation that Gartin will sponsor and work for if elected to the national congress.

Arrangements are being worked ot for television coverage of the opening address.

Gartin said a local arrangements committee is working out details to provide musical entertainment for the crowd before the address.

The former Laurel mayor, who was elected Lt. Gov. in 1951 by over 100,000 vote margin, said 'I want every man, woman and child who can attend my campaign opening to consider themselves personally invited to be there.

'I want them to know what I stand for and believe in, and I plan in my opening speech to make crystal clear my stand on the issues in this campaign.'

Gartin, a native of Lauderdale County, is an overseas veteran of 5 years service in World War II. After graduating from high school in Meridian, he worked his way through Jones County Junior College at Ellisville and then studied law at Jackson Law School at Millsaps College in Jackson and at the U. of Miss.

He is a deacon in the Baptist Church, is active in the American Legion, the VFW, 40 and 8, Masons, Eastern Star, Shrine, Odd Fellows, Rebeccas, Knights of Pythias and the Laurel Exchange Club.

In 1947 he was awarded the Citizenship Medal by the Laurel Junior Chamber of Commerce for outstanding public service. He is married to the former Miss Janie Gavin of Stafford Springs. They have two children, Patricia Gartin, 11, and Billy Gartin, 7. Gartin is also a member of the board of trustees of Mississippi Baptist Hospital at Jackson.

a little daughter, Cathrine Berry, for Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Cutrone of Morgan City, La. on May 24 at Touro Infirmary in New Orleans. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Waring Taylor of Grenada. Mrs. Taylor is spending several weeks with her children.

Banquet Honoring John Lake And Grenada Industries, Inc.

Grenada Industries and its president, John C. Lake, will be honored at a banquet at the City Hall on Friday evening, June 18 at 7:30, it was announced today by L. D. Boone, Sr., chairman of the citizens committee in charge of arrangements for the event.

The dinner will be an expression of appreciation by the people of Grenada for the contributions which the industry has made to the community, Mr. Boone said. He expressed the hope that several hundred citizens will turn out for the occasion.

"We realize that in this untra-modern plant Grenada has one of the highest type industries that it is possible to obtain, and much of the credit for the growth and progress of Grenada during the last few years can be attributed to Grenada Industries,' Mr. Boone stated.

The plant, established here in 1937 as the state's second BAWI industry, began operations with a guaranteed payroll of only $60,000 and approximately 160 employees. Since that time expansion has been steady, and at the present time the industry affords employment for some 830 people with a total annual payroll of $2,500,000. Today it is one of the South's largest nylon hosiery manufacturing plants.

During World War II the operation was partially converted to defense production in the manufacture of artillery shells. For its fine record in this connection, the plant was three times the recipient of the Navy E Award.

Anyone desiring to attend this banquet can make a reservatoin by contacting any of the following members of the arrangement committee: Junius Townes, Dr. F. S. Hill, Donald Ross, Sam Futhey, Frank Evans, Francis Criss, C. M. Stricklin, Henry Ray, Jr., Orlev Lilly, R. J. Judge Holmes Announces For Re-Election

Hon. Herbert Holmes Chancery Judge of the Third Chancery District, has authorized this newspaper to enter his name in its announcement columns as a candidate to succeed himself. Judge Holmes has filled an unexpired term as Chancery Judge and is now completing his first term in his own right. Widely proclaimed as one of the most outstanding jurists in Mississippi, Judge Holmes has a long record of successful accomplishments behind him.

A resident of Senatobia, where he engaged in the active practice of law for more than forty years, Judge Holmes is a native of this district, having been reared in DeSoto County. During his active practice he participated in many important cases all over the Mid South and his reputation as an estate and trial lawyer and Chancery Judge spread into all parts of Mississippi.

President of Senatobia Bank, a farm owner, 13 years Chairman of the Mississippi State Democratic Executive Committee and a long time leader in the Methodist Church, Judge Holmes is experienced and has a successful, proven record in all phases of life that go to make for the development of his native state and community.

A man could not have received all the honors that have been his nor have accumulated such an imposing legal background without having reached mature years. Friends in all counties of the Third Chancery District will be quick to remind you that his dockets stay clear and that his decisions are just. Seldom does he require any unusual amount of time to render a court decision. Physically strong and mentally alert he transacts the business of his courts fairly, drawing from a thorough knowledge of the law.

SEEN, HEARD & TOLD BY THE EDITOR

We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.—Acts 4:20.

The recent death of Neil Carothers reminds me that his father, Rev. Joe Carothers baptized me and, as one of the last official acts of his life, baptized my oldest boy, Whyte Jr. And, by the way, Volney Nason, just in the office, said Uncle Joe Carothers baptized him too.

One musical treat I missed was the singing of Fisherman-Jeweler Davies who, according to his friend, Tommie Darras, was much like that of Bing Crosby.

Speaking of radio, Mabel, the GCW and I appreciate the 'salute' by Rice Flower Shop to the GCW. Mabel, who got the beautiful red roses, appreciated them too.

I think I started a trek to White Lake after Whyte Jr. and I tractored in there Sunday and brought back a long string of bream. It is hell to get there, but the tortuous trip was worth it.

I am still taking Mrs. Jake Whitaker's remedy for arthritis - a tablespoon of codliver oil and the juice of one orange every night- and aint hurt any more. However, my fingers stay crossed.

I aint bragging because I know what Andrew can do with a casting rod, but the fact is this: Friday afternoon, a very windy one, he and I went to the north bank of Enid. I caught two, Andrew none.

The cat plague has struck Oxberry. Whyte Jr., a regular raiser of cats, has lost every one he had from some mysterious malady. He is now in the market for another start in cats.

Judge Herbert Holmes of Senatobia was one of our many distinguished visitors Monday.

Tom Meek should have been happy Friday as he had his main fishing partner, CCHamby, Jr., out at Enid with him.

WNAG is to have a fisherman's program at 8 Tuesday and Thursday evenings. If they would just put a microphone at the Glory Hole (Hamby's corner) they could pick up the most continuous conversations.

Jimmie Pennix, a fisherman, is putting on the program which should be very interesting, just so they dont bar lies.

The GCW is quite flattered. A native Tennesseean named Lee Whitaker now lives in Whittier, California. He is no kin to us, but we call each other 'cousin' on the theory that ALL Whitakers are kin. A good many years ago he started with the GCW. The flattering part to us is that he is a regular renewer.

I think he is really the fellow who fainted when a few drops of rain fell in his face. It took 6 buckets of sand to revive him. Frankly, it 'looks like rain' in Southern California EVERY morning, but never rains.

(Intended for last week's issue)

There's a corny little song going the rounds now-a-day called 'You-all Come' and I guess Ada and I took it literally and assumed we were being invited, so we have just returned from a whole week's visit with kinsfolk in Louisiana. We'd have lunch with one of them and dinner with one and we'd sleep at another's house and in that way we managed to go the rounds without showing any preference. You got to be careful though, something like walking on eggs, when you visit so many people on one trip or else they'll tell you how little time you've spent at with one and how very much more time you've spent with one of the others. But it is nice to have any one at all anxious to have you visit in their home. Its almost a lost pleasure these days to have friends or relatives to come in and spend a few days in the home, and of course it is a burden and a chore to have people move right in your bedroom with 4 or 5 pieces of luggage and take over the entire household from the TV to the bath. So, our thanks for the memory to Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Taylor and Janet Kay and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Cannon - my sisters at Alexandria.

Heard a sad little story while down in Louisiana about the hanging gray moss one sees all over the big trees down there as you drive along their beautiful highways. The story comes from some of the Indian legends and says once upon a time a great chief of the Atakapas had extensive hunting grounds along the river Teche, and of course he had a lovely daughter. The old chief had picked out a certain Brave for his son-in-law but the little Indian Princess had already fallen in love with another handsome Indian from another tribe, and was meeting him secretely under one of the big spreading oaks. The chief hid himself near the big tree and when the young brave came he jumped him and thrust a knife through his heart. A little later the princess came to the big tree and found her lover dead and broken-hearted she took the same knife and killed herself and they left them lying together under the big oak. Then according to the legend, the great spirit of love came in the night and clipped off the long hair of the lovers and hung the tresses upon the tree under which they had died. The long hair in time turned gray, and with love's blessings bestowed upon it, began to grow and spread from tree to tree all over the Southland. And thats the story of the origin of the willowy gray moss which hangs on the long wavering limbs of the big trees in the lowlands of Louisiana.

Are You an Oldtimer?

Well, you are an oldtimer if you can remember when the wife called her husband 'The Mister' or if you can remember when you could woo a girl with sen sen and stick candy. You are an oldtimer if you can remember when a young couple set up housekeeping with a sheet-iron heater and an iron bedstead and were not ashamed of it. We will know you are an oldtimer if we hear you brag about staying out with the boys untill bed time when you well knew the supper was on the table. You are an oldtimer if you can remember when you worked hard all year and what you had left was yours instead of the government's. And you are definitely an oldtimer if you have the courage to take the family car to pull the trailer and boat and spend all your week-ends on the lake or river and not have to fight your way in when you come home. Are you an oldtimer? —Fed.

"Farm of the Week" Last Week

—This Series Sponsored by Jitney-Jungle, Grenada.

Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Fred Sultan came in and claimed the picture of the above farm headquarters.

The farm belongs to the Sultans and contains 90 acres and is located in the northeast corner of the Jim Shaw old tract and is separated from the Grenada-Calhoun County line only by a narrow tract of land.

It is a very much 'live at home and board at the same place' kind of farm operation.

The Sultans acquired the tract in January, 1949 and have been working to improve it ever since.

They practice land improvement, such as proper terracing, proper water control, proper pasturage and have enough cattle, hogs and chickens to give them an 'anchor' whatever way the wind blows.

The family consists of mother, father and four children: Lurline, who is married to one of the many Abels; Pvt. Algin, who is in the infantry at Camp Gordon, Georgia; Donald, who lives at home and works at the same place, and Nannie May who also is at home.

They have a modest acreage of cotton and a good deal of improved pastures. Both boys participate in 4-H Club work. One won a nice prize as owner of 200 Rhode Island Red chickens, from whose layings Mrs. Sultan sells eggs.

The only excuse they have for owning and feeding a mule is for that humble animal to pull the tools used in cultivating the abundant garden crops.

Mrs. Sultan was a Hemphill and, since one of her daughters married an Abel, they are kin by blood or marriage to nearly everyone in Beat Two.

Aladdin was a Piker!

Remember Aladdin, the lad who could acquire anything just by rubbing his Magic Lamp?

Now look at the man in the picture. He is making Aladdin's eyes pop. Because Aladdin, and the lady, are seeing something new—one of a thousand wonders Aladdin never dreamed of—a 1954 product of American industry.

Aladdin is amazed. But not the lady. Nor would you be. For all of us are accustomed to seeing new products—and old—in variety and quantity that Aladdin couldn't duplicate by a year of constant lamp rubbing.

The Illinois Central helps your merchants make Aladdin look like a piker. It takes the best of modern transportation to move vast quantities of raw materials to factories and the finished products from factories to wholesalers and retailers. Only the most economical mass transportation can bring more and more of these products within reach of your pocketbook.

Each year, to maintain and better our service, we spend millions of dollars improving our tracks, our signal systems, our freight yards, our locomotives and our freight cars. These improvements reflect our belief that we must earn and re-earn in honest competition the privilege of serving you and all the people of Mid-America.

The City, A Good Example For County To Follow

Apparently, the City has got most of the 'bugs' out of its council-manager set-up.

The very heart of this system of government is to have a competent and honest man as manager of the city, just like a bank has a manager, or an oil mill has a manager; permitting the board of directors which, in the case of the city are the members of the city board, and, in the case of the county, the supervisors - to establish board policies, enact legislation, fix the rate of taxation and other board matters; in the meanwhile, letting the manager look after all details.

On a county-wide basis, that's about the system Coahoma County has. The board does not have to meet to repair a bridge, grade a road, or employ men. Those are jobs which the road manager does.

Having a good, honest man and one not swayed by political leaning, is the real reason that Grenada has good government. That's the reason Coahoma County has good, economical government.

Take John McEachin, Grenada's City Manager. Look at the city-owned air port. The huge hanger there has deteriorating badly. John saw that the City had enough surplus money to repair the hanger. He talked to the aldermen about repairing that potential valuable asset to the city, and got the aldermen's permission to 'go ahead' with the job. He did not mark in red every pane of glass that had to be replaced, or every rotten piece of timber to be replaced. He hired some good men who replaced broken glass, put on new siding where the siding was rotten, spread excellent paint on the huge expanse of space needing it; bought paint (folks know John bought it reasonably, too, just as if it was John's money being spent), acted as his own foreman, and is doing a jam-up job. Hating waste in his own affairs, he hates waste in the city's affairs.

Had Grenada been unfortunate enough to get a manager who did not give a damn about the city's money and one who was not alert to the deteriorating effects ofweather and time on the city's property, it is easily conceivable that the several attempts to 'do away' with that form of government, might have been successful.

See these stretches of resurfaced streets in Grenada. John saw that the city had some surplus money to do these small jobs, got permission from the board, and went ahead with them, as he did with the repainting of the city-owned building housing the library.

The county folks are bound to have noted the fine system we have in the city, and what success the system is meeting and might, thru close contact with what's going on in the city, be pursuaded to adopt some salutary changes in the archaic county set-up.

Suggested Platform For Supervisor Candidates

Grenada County's present '5 counties in 1 county' system is just about as out of date as the old 'overseer' system where the overseer 'called' hands to work.

But there is another system, used in a good many counties with fine, economical results. It is called the county-unit system, in which all of the equipment is owned by the county, in which all employees are hired by the county, in which all gas, oil, repairs and new equipment are bought by the county, and all accounts paid by the county from a single county fund.

Coahoma County, among other progressive counties have used this system successfully for many years. And by the way, Coahoma County had such a fine system that, in some national magazine, it was written up as one of the best-managed counties in the nation.

Hillary Talbert, native of Grenada County, happened to be the man, called County Purchasing Agent, who had a great deal to do with the success of the Coahoma County plan. Mr. Moss, a man Mr. Talbert trained, now occupies that position in Coahoma County.

It is hardly conceivable that proper returns on the huge investment in 5 complete sets of road equipment can be justified if such equipment is used only for roads in a small beat, nor is it economical for a whole crew of men to be used advantageously in one small beat.

There are many advantages to be gained over the '5 counties in 1 county' system as presently used.

Many men, as usual, will run for supervisor to get those lucrative jobs. I suggest, therefore, that at least ONE man from each beat have as a cardinal plank in his platform a pledge to work for the establishment of a county-unit plan, should he be elected.

There has been a lot of favorable sentiment for trying this plan in Grenada County. The way I suggest is a fine way to get this matter voted on.

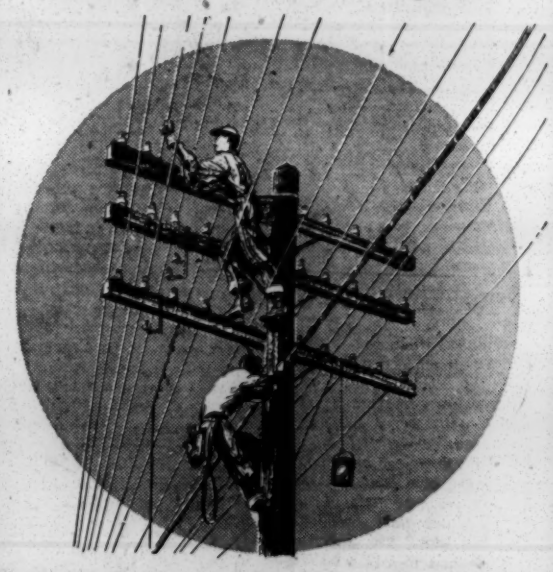
Miles and Miles of Wire
To bring Mississippi Farm Families Closer Together



THE TELEPHONE WIRES that join the towns and rural areas served by Southern bell in Mississippi would stretch around the world. . . . And we're adding many more miles as we push steadily ahead on a construction program to bring telephone service within reach of more and more farm homes and business establishments in the areas we serve.

Already there are four and a half times as many Southern Bell rural telephones in Mississippi as there were just eight years ago and, in spite of inflated costs of everything that goes into telephone construction, we're continuing to push still more rural lines out to the farms.

Moss - Davis Vows Said In Church Ceremony Here

In a ceremony of solemnity and beauty Monday evening, June 7 , at the First Baptist Church, Miss Modena Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Eddie Davis, and Alton F. Moss, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Moss, were united in marriage. Dr. John W. Landrum conducted the impressive service.

The altar, softly lighted by stately white tapers, was adorned with hemlock, and beuaty baskets of white gladioli, stock and lacy fern. The couple exchanged vows beneath a white wrought iron arch entwined with baby's breath and tied with large white satin bows. Sprays of baby's breath caught by similar bows marked the reserved pews.

Preceding the ceremony, a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. E. L. Boteler, Jr., organist, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. S. L. Moorhead.

Given in marriage by her brother, Sheriff S. L. Davis, the bride was beautiful in her wedding gown, an original by Bonre in candel-glow satin combined with import French chantilly lace.

The lace pointed basque fastened with minature lace buttons, and the decollete portrait tulle yoke was appliqued to the bodice with rose lace medallions embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. Long lace sleeves, buttoned from the elbow to the petal point over hand. The gathered satin skirt worn over period hoops developed into voluminous folds extending into the long cathedral train. A twelve-inch scalloped circular flounce was appliqued on the bottom of the skirt, encircling the entire hem of skirt and train.

Her double tier hip length veil of misty bridal illusion fell in graceful points from a coronation crown of complimenting lace embroidered in pearls and sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids, valley lilies and bride's roses.

Miss Orena Davis, the bride's twin sister, was maid of honor. Her gown was of azure blue Venice lace combined with nylon tulle over matching taffeta. The lace basque featured a deep yoke completed with narrow lace edging, and brief sleeves. The taxi-length tulle gathered skirt accentuated over starched skirts had a hip peplum of the Venice lace.

Mrs. D. A. Richards, Jr. of Canton and Miss Melba Davis, also sisters of the bride, served as bridesmaids. They wore gowns identical in design of blue lace combined with tulle over taffeta. The strapless lace bodice had an inset of pleated tulle across the front, and the cover up shrug jacket of lace was a cut in one with short sleeves fastened to form the heart neck. The taxi-length gathered skirts were worn over starched petticoats.

All the feminine attendants wore wedding ring pompadour hats of blue import Swiss straw emphasized with giant pearls attached to brow veils and carried petal bouquets of pink carnations.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Wade Moss. The ushers were Hiram Davis, Earl Moss, Lowrey Dyre, and Bob Fields.

Mrs. Davis chose for her daughter's wedding a gown of blue Venice lace over blue taffeta accented with rhinestones. Pink elbow length gloves and pink jeweled hat completed her attire. The groom's mother wore champagne lace with satin trim. Her elbow length gloves and hat studded with rhinestones were of matching hue. Each wore a purple throated orchid.

Following the ceremony, the couple left for a honeymoon trip to the Smokies, Mrs. Moss traveling in blue imported Duppioni silk with toast and white accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet. They will spend the months of July and August in Wichita Falls, Texas after which they will be at home in Houston, Texas, where the groom will complete his senior year Baylor U. College of Medicine.

Amos on Alcohol

Lesson for June 13, 1954

THE prophets of Israel are singularly up-to-date. They lived thousands of miles away from here, thousands of years ago. Yet the problems of mankind are much the same then as now. The prophet's inspired eyes could see what was wrong with the world around him, and he would say bluntly what it was. But few prophets often used that blanket word "sin." Nobody's in favor of sin. What the prophet always did was to name certain particular sins. These habits, these acts, these customs, he would say—these are what our country is dying from. These things are fatal. So it was in 800 B.C., so it is in 1954 A.D.

Dr. Foreman

Liquor Is Not Alone

It is only fanatics who believe that some one sin is by itself destroying the country. No sin, in fact, exists by itself. Also it is true that when a country is destroyed, as Israel was destroyed, it dies of more than one disease. The prophet Amos named a number of evils which were eating into the vitality of his nation and people. The consumption of liquor was one of these. But Amos never said that liquor was the only thing wrong with his country. He associates it with selfishness, greed, indifference to real problems, adultery, dishonesty and other sins. One of the bad features of liquor is that it attaches itself to other evils and makes them worse. There would be speeding on the highways even if everyone were always cold sober; but drinking drivers make the problem worse and the accidents more often fatal. (There really can't be such a thing as a drunken driver—a drunk can't drive at all. It's the drinking drivers who make the trouble.) There would be murders if whiskey had never been heard from. But every day murders are reported in the papers that would no doubt never have been committed if everyone concerned had been sober at the time. Rape and seduction are not unheard of by any means, in Mohammedan countries where alcoholic drinks are completely forbidden. But liquor pushes many young people over the edge who without it could retain their self-control and self-respect, but with it in them, lose both.

'The Best People'

In the time of Amos he took note of some quite "respectable" people who were drinkers. Churchgoers he mentions first of all, people who drink wine "in the house of their god." (This of course has nothing whatsoever to do with the communion service, a sacrament instituted by Christ.) He condemns these church-goers more than he does the riff-raff. It is worse for some people to drink than it is for others; and perhaps worst of all for church people. After all is said and done, people who know little and may care less about what is right and what is wrong, will think that anything a church member does must be all right. One church member who is known to drink, even if he is very temperate about it, can do more harm than a dozen alcoholics. Another respectable class Amos mentions are the women of wealth and social position. Amos is not exactly respectful to these ladies; on the contrary he calls them cattle, "kine of Bashan"—a specially fat kind of cattle of these days. Again, the use of liquor by wives of successful men, women who are leaders in their communities, does more harm than all the drinking down in the poolrooms. The harm done to others by the drinker is often greater than what he does to himself.

Amos Saw It Coming

Amos predicted that his country would soon fall because of its sins, and fall it did. No doubt the drinkers of his day thought their liquor drinking helped them to escape from their troubles; Amos could see that it only brought on more troubles. The truth about liquor is seldom to be had from people who are its victims, more seldom still from those who make money by it. Ministers, doctors, welfare workers, see the situation from the standpoint of those who have to try to patch up the wrecks. Do you want a strong America? Strong countries, like strong people, are not made so by strong drink.

D.A.R. SPRING LUNCHEON

An interesting social event of the season was that of the DAR Spring Luncheon held at the Monte Cristo May 21, with twenty four members and their guests present.

Mrs. H. A. Alexander, chairman of the hostess committee, greeted the guests upon arrival and invited them into the dining room.

Cohostesses were Mesdames George Garner, W. B. Hoffa and H. G. Meek.

The speakers table was centered with an arrangement of white and yellow daisies interspersed with blue ragged robins and babys breaths. On each of the small tables was placed a crystal bud vase holding a yellow carnation.

Following invocation by Miss Lida Owens, the chapter regent, Mrs. T. B. Revell, Jr. led the group in repeating the Allegiance to the U. S. Flag. She then graciously welcomed the following guests, Mesdames F. T. Gerard, Albert George, G. S. Kent, A. M. Carothers, W. W. Whitaker, J. W. Jordan, E. M. Grimes, Atty. and Mrs. Brad Dye, Elizabeth Brown, Irvin Johnson, O. R. Lilly, W. H. Carter, Sam Simmons, Jr. J. H. Oliver, Miss Eva Ray and Mrs. Swango.

Guests of the chapter were Mrs. Jack Sanderson and her lovely daughter, Jacqueline, who is DAR's 1954 Good Citizenship Girl.

Mrs. Revell introduced Jacqueline by paying tribute to her for outstanding qualities of dependability, leadership and patriotism. Jacqueline responded with a few words of appreciation for the honor bestowed upon her by the DAR.

Miss Kathrine Winter of Texas, a great neice of Mrs. Mollie Winter Townes, was elected to make application for membership in the Grenada Chapter.

Delegates to Continental Congress which met in Washington, D. C. April 19-24 were Mrs. E. L. Wilkins and Mrs. H. A. Alexander of Grenada and Mrs. John Bailey of Coffeeville.

Mrs. Alexander gave a brief report of the activities of the Congress, stressing four events of importance. The Plantatoin Party, depicting the Old South, staged by the Mississippi delegation was breath-taking in its beauty. It was attended by more than one thousand guests. The Opening Night, with its pagentry and beauty, was highlighted by the dynamic address by U. S. Senator Stiles Bridges. She then told of several resolutions passed by the Congress, that is, the stand against Communism and emphasis on Americanism, and fourth, the visit of President Eisenhower to the DAR Congress.

After Mrs. Alexander's report, Mrs. Revell introduced Mrs. W. A. McCool chapter parliamentarian, who in a few words introduced the guest speaker, Mr. B. J. Dye, attorney at law.

Mr. Dye spoke no how each individual should assume his or her responsibility in the community. He told of each one feeling his or her own inadequacy as did the men who shaped our American history, giving for example John Marshal's plebean background and his climb to fame as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, another instance being James Monroe who came from a plain family with no thought that he may become great in history. Thomas Jefferson came from ordinary people and Alexander Hamilton acknowledged the stigma of illegitimacy, and lived above the heads of man who may criticize him, to become a great American figure. All of these men lived above their inadequacies. He told of Johnnie Ech of Boston, who was born without lower limbs, who learned to walk on his hands, who graduated from college and who is self sustaining, asking favors from no one. He concluded by saying each person has a place in their community and that we have the capacity to fill it with ferver and humility, that it is well to spend his or her time using our talents in service.

Mrs. Revell then thanked the luncheon committee and other committees who had worked through the past year.

The chapter will meet again in September.

BOOK AS MEMORIAL

'Reconstruction at Sewanee', 1857-72 by Arthur Ben Chitty was reviewed in last Sunday's Commercial Appeal. It had already been purchased and placed as a Memorial to Mary Phelan Brown and so is available to the borrowers of Grenada County Library. In folloging our policy to buy as many books on the South and especially the histories of the higher educational institutions we were glad to add this one to our collection.

'Probably seldom in the annals of the Christian education has there been a more dramatic story than that of the Pioneers of the Cumberland Plateau' who resolved to establish there a sanctuary for the free spirit of man and a shrine for the glorification of God.

The names alone would have made this good reading. Here are James Hervey Otey, First Episcopal Briest west of the Great Smokies, and first Chancellor of the University; Leonidas Polk, General and pioneer bishop, Stephen Elliott, second presiding bishop of the Confederacy; Charles Todd Quintard, medical man and minister; George Rainsford Fairbanks, scholar, lawyer, [illegible]rator; William Mercer Green, the Mississippian; and many others.

It is an effort to explain a pattern combining the cultural and ethical implications of the Oxonian, Southern, West Point, classical and Epipscopal traditions.

The meeting and movement that resulted in the organization of the University of the South, was the first constructive work done by the people of the South in their effort to help themselves after the Civil War.
